NATO still wants leadership of U.S.

ROME (UPI) — President Bush won assurances Thursday from his 15 NATO partners that a central U.S. role is desired in the future of the alliance. Secretary of State James Baker said.

Briefing reporters at the end of a day of diplomatic dancing over the question of an independent European defense capability, Baker said, "My sense is that the United States will for quite some time continue to be the leader of the alliance and that our European allies are very anxious that that be the case."

Baker said the confirmation would be evident in Friday's summit-closing communique and was reached after Bush demanded the question be resolved.

"We wanted to lay our cards on the table, if you will, and make it very clear the position of the United States with respect to the importance of this alliance," he said. "We want to make certain that there are no ambiguities and there is no confusion."

But Baker also sought to downplay any divisions or ill will, particularly on the part of France, caused by Bush's decision to couple a call for a renewal of alliance solidarity with a blunt demand that the NATO partners "tell us ... today" that they desire continued U.S. backing.

Baker termed it "a complete red herring" that moves were afoot to undermine the United States, while denying at the same time Bush's demand constituted an ultimatum.

Bush asked for firm commitments in a speech as the leaders sat down for a two-day summit meeting to set post-Cold War

Ceiling tiles in parts of the Communications Building crashed to the floor Thursday as water leaked through the aging roof, sending department officials scrambling to save computer and office equipment.

Structural problems with a plastic roof installed in 1977 are causing leaks in many portions of the building.

The journalism, cinema and photography departments, McLeod Theater and the scenery section of the theater department have experienced leaks, said Jim Ray,

Senate approves 'gag' rule

Bill that would let clinics give abortion information sent to White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted Thursday to overturn the administration's "gag" rule that bars federally financed family planning clinics from giving women information about abortion.

The prohibition against the rule was included in the $205 billion fiscal 1992 appropriations bill for the Department of Health and Human Services that passed 72-25. The bill was sent to the White House.

The Senate vote was five more than would be needed to override an expected veto by President Bush. The 272-156 vote in the House, however, did not reach the required two-thirds mark for an override.

Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, said he thought enough members of the House could be switched to override Bush's veto, something Congress has failed to do since the president took office.

"The vote in the House is going to be close enough so that the electorate will know who voted for the gag rule and who voted against it," Harkin told reporters.

Asked whether the administration and Congress could come to a compromise, Harkin asked, "What compromise?"

The regulations prohibit federally financed family planning clinics from providing any information to their clients about abortion.

The Supreme Court upheld the regulations in a May 23 decision that spurred a vigorous

Poshard ponders possible political preferences

By Doug Toole
Politics Writer

Glenn Poshard said he is not ruling out any methods of getting on the congressional ballot if he decides to run for re-election in 1992.

U.S. Rep. Poshard, D-Carbondale, said he will meet with family members and Democratic party leaders this weekend to determine whether he will try to keep his job as a congressman.

The area Poshard used to represent, the 22nd Congressional District, was split among the 19th, 20th and 21st districts by a three-judge federal panel Wednesday.

Poshard said he had decided only not to run in the district that will reach from Springfield to Mount Vernon, an extension of the 20th district, currently held by Bruce Durbin, D-Springfield.

He said he has not ruled out any other options at this point, such as moving to a district further north or running under an independent or Republican ticket.

During the weekend, Poshard said he will look at the population figures to decide where he would stand the best chance at getting re-elected. He said he is friends with the representatives from the 19th and 21st districts—Terry Bruce, D-Oleyn and Jerry Costello, D-Be'leville—but he has not discussed his situation with them.

"I'm sure they realize I'll probably have to run against one of them to keep my (congressional) seat," Poshard said.

The 22nd district, which contained the southernmost Illinois counties, was eliminated because the panel accepted the Republican redistricting proposal. New congressional boundaries had to be drawn to reflect changes in population found by the 1990 U.S. Census.

Lakers' Johnson stricken with HIV

Magic tests positive, virus ends career

INGLEWOOD (UPI) — Magic Johnson, one of the greatest players in basketball history, Thursday said he has the virus which causes AIDS and will retire immediately from the Los Angeles Lakers.

"Life will go on with me, and I'll be a happy man," Johnson said at a packed news conference at the Forum, home of the Lakers. He said he learned only Wednesday of his disease.

Johnson, 32, stepped to the microphone a few minutes after 3 p.m. PST, greeted the approximately 300 media members present and made a brief statement.

"I just want to make clear that I do not have the AIDS disease but the HIV virus," Johnson said. "My wife is fine, she's negative so there's no problem with her."

"This is not like my life is over, because it's not, I'll live on. I'll work out, I'll be like one of the old-timers in a sense. My strength is fine. I have to take medication and go on from there."

"This is another challenge, another chapter in my life. It's like your life is back against the wall. You have to come out swinging, and I'm swinging. You have to have a bright side. I can't be down, I never have been."

Johnson smiled occasionally during his brief announcement and answered several questions. His wife of several months, Cookie, was by his side, as were former teammates Kareem-Abdul Jabbar and Michael Cooper and NBA Commissioner David Stern.

Michael Mellman, the team physician, said Johnson does not have AIDS and "is not ill in any way. There is no immediate effect on his life other than we have asked him to avoid those activities which can hurt his immune system, like playing pro basketball."

Mellman added, "Some people (with HIV virus) last a decade or longer before they get ill, some people get ill very quickly. I'm not able to give you a prognosis other than to say he's healthy now, we expect him to stay healthy and have him around a long time."

Johnson said he will be a spokesman for HIV virus and preach to everyone the importance of safe sex and of being examined. He learned of his disease following tests required for life insurance.

"I want young people to realize they can practice safe sex," Johnson said. "Sometimes you're naive about it and think it can never happen to you. You think 'only gay people get it, it won't happen to me.' Now I say it can happen to anyone, it happened to Magic Johnson. Everyone should be more careful, that's what I'm going to preach."

"It has happened to me but I'll deal with it and my life will go on. I will be here enjoying the Lakers games and other NBA games."

Mellman applauded Johnson for his brave revelation.

"What we witnessed today is a courageous act by a very special man," Mellman said. "He was not compelled by any legal act to disclose what he disclosed today. He is not a person who is invisible. Because of his presence, because of his potential impact on society, I think he should not only be commended but be held as a modern-day hero. This is a very special person and a very special admission."

Stern, the league commissioner, also lauded Johnson's courage in speaking publicly of his disease.

"By invoking the NBA and all his teammates and players to deliver the message he wants to deliver, I think we can get something positive out of a very terrible situation," Stern said.

"When Magic understood he was HIV positive, this was something he very much wanted to do because of all the work he has done with kids, all the work he has done with the community."

Spikers storm into final four Gateway contests

By Cyndi Oberle
Sports Writer

THE SIUC VOLLEYBALL team will make its final road stand today and Saturday against Gateway Conference opponents Drake and Northern Iowa.

The Salukis, for the first time since Sept. 14, have above a .500 mark to take into the final four games of the regular season.

After crushing Bradley and Western Illinois in two home contests last weekend, the spikers, 4-1 in league play, are one of four teams with only one Gateway loss.

Head coach Sonya Locke said the upcoming matches could influence whether SIUC's goal of hosting the conference tourney is attainable.

"The conference race is just what I expected," Locke said. "It is really up for grabs. If we want to host the tourney we need to win these last four matches."

Locke said she also is worried because the next two games will be on the road.

Volleyball Notebook

"Whenever you play at another team's home court, you have to give them one advantage," she said. "We know what we have to do mentally to win, all we need to do now is put it to work."

Drake is 11-13 overall and 4-1 in Gateway play. SIUC has won seven straight and leads 9-1 in the 13-year-old rivalry.

Northern Iowa, conference champion runner-up in 1990, posts a 16-7 overall record and a 4-1 mark in the conference. The Salukis have dropped the last six meetings with the Panthers, but the series rests at six-all.

The leading teams in the conference are extremely close, and the title could go to any one of the four, Locke said.

Northern Iowa head coach Idrage Arabi-Fard said every team is beatable, but every team can conquer.

"There are four or five teams in the conference who will be in the run for the top Gateway spots," he said. "The low-ranked teams are much improved since last year while the top-ranked teams are not doing as well."

THE SPIKERS are unbeatable in their home fortress of Davies Gymnasium where they post a 9-0 mark for the season.

They are bringing a four-game win streak into the last four games.

Gridders relax before season finale

By Todd Eschman
Sports Writer

Saluki head football coach Bob Smith has had a stressful season. He taught nervously as his team won seven games by no more than five points.

But Smith said he will relax and have fun this week as the Salukis close out the regular season against Louisiana Tech.

The Dawgs, 7-3 overall and 4-2 in conference play, capped off the Gateway season last week with a 31-30 win over Eastern Illinois. The win assured the Salukis of their best season since 1986 and their best season ever in the seven-year-old Gateway Conference.

Louisiana Tech, the only Division I-A team on the Salukis' 1991 schedule, is coming off a 35-10 pummeling of Northeast Louisiana. The Bulldogs are 5-1-2.

The Dawgs are hanging on to slim hopes of sharing the conference championship. SIUC stands in third place, but a loss by Western Illinois to Northern Iowa Saturday and an Eastern Illinois win over Northern Iowa next week would put the Salukis in a tie for first place.

Smith said the pressure is off his team now that the conference season is over.

"We are in a position that most teams and coaching staffs don't have," Smith said. "We have the luxury of having seven wins in the bank and no conference games left. Usually you don't have this opportunity to relax when preparing for a ballgame. We can just lay back and watch the other teams in the conference play."

With the pressure lifted and the Salukis fate in the hands of their conference rivals, Smith said the Dawgs will have fun this week.

"We can do whatever we want to do in this ball game," he said. "We're liable to run a triple reverse on a kickoff return, or put in eight new blitzes or five new trick plays. We can turn it loose against Louisiana Tech because there is no

The SIUC women's cross country team has suffered what coach Don DeNoon called "a major setback" as they near the end of the 1991 cross country season.

meet Saturday in Charleston. Indiana State upset the Saluki women with a 71-point first-place performance. Southwest Missouri was second with 80, and SIUC placed third with 82 points.

DeNoon attributed the Salukis' problems to pressure placed on them by being named the meet favorite.

"We had some good individual performances," he

First fall snow covers ground in Carbondale

By William Ragan
Special Assignment Writer

The first snowfall of winter blanketed Carbondale Wednesday night, showering the ground with one-half inch of snow.

SIU Weather Station in Carbondale reported an unofficial figure of less than a half of an inch at 6 a.m. Thursday. The snowfall was packed, and a portion of it had melted overnight.

The SIU Weather Station reported a low temperature of 28 degrees Wednesday night, and fell to 25 degrees by Thursday morning.

No snow is expected within the next 24 hours.

Wayne Wheelles, superintendent of streets and sanitation in Carbondale, said the snowfall was not heavy enough to merit street clean-up.

"We didn't experience any freezing until early this morning," Wheelles said.

"There's always a three degree drop around sunrise, and that started the bridges freezing," he said.

Wheelles said roads were clear and free of ice within Carbondale city limits.

Accumulation of snow in the region was spotty. The National Weather Service in Evansville, Ind., reported an inch of accumulation, while the bureau in Paducah reported no accumulation at all.

Federal government cuts energy program

Low-income folks may be left in cold throughout winter

By Annette Holder
City Writer

The federal government is giving Illinois $27 million less this year for the Low-Income Energy Assistance Program.

The federal government usually matches the money given by the state and last year Illinois provided $27 million to the program, said Janey Willis, coordinator of the LIHEAP.

The LIHEAP is implemented by the Western, Egyptian Economic Opportunity Council.

The LIHEAP for Jackson County is in Steeleville and provides money to residents with low incomes to help them pay utility bills.

Some of the people who have received energy assistance in the past will be on their own this winter, she said.

The program provided energy assistance to 2,000 people last year. Willis said she did not know how many people the program would help this year because the federal government has not determined the amount of money it will give toward the program.

"There will be a lot of people who will be on their own for the rest of the winter," she said. "If we have a bad winter I don't know what people are going to do."

Eligibility for the program is determined by income and the number of people in a household.

The most a person can earn to receive assistance is $607 for one person, $814 for two people, $1,021 for three people and $1,228 for four people.

Willis said the average payment to each household will be $175. The payment will be received in only one lump sum, unlike previous years when people received money throughout the winter.

Willis said the earliest people can receive assistance now is December because all appointments are taken for November.

Alan Potts, customer service representative for Central Illinois Power Service, said the electric company is prevented from indiscriminately turning off electricity.

"We have a whole group of rules that apply that are set by the Illinois Commerce Commission," he said. "We are not in the business of turning people's power off."

Potts said the best thing to do to avoid disconnection is to contact CIPS before the bill is past due.

"With the deferred payment agreement, they can come in and pay a percentage of the bill depending on their income," he said. "This helps people get out of a one time situation."

Turning down the thermostat, opening curtains on sunny days and weather stripping windows and doors are ways to save on energy costs, he said.

For every degree you reduce your room temperature between 70 and 60 degrees, you will save 3 percent off your electricity bill, Potts said.

In Jackson County, call 684-3341 to make an appointment for energy assistance.

Crime records need opened on campus

NO ONE IS ABOVE the law—including students.

The U.S. Department of Education mandates public colleges and universities to keep campus crime records private under the Buckley Amendment, a federal law that makes student education records private.

Many colleges and universities across the nation face the loss of federal funding for releasing their crime records.

A RECENT COURT decision held that campus law enforcement records were not student education records under Buckley.

Consequently, campus crime records are separate from the privacy protection of education records.

The legislation still lacks the qualifying language that would separate law enforcement records from education records, although bills to clarify Buckley are creeping through Congress.

IN THE MEANTIME, SIUC bypasses the regulation by defining the University security office as an external agency.

In this way SIUC can release law enforcement records without facing loss of federal funds, although the DOE never has pulled funding for violations during the last 17 years.

Actions by public institutions to get around the amendment show that colleges and universities are serious about crime.

SIUC RELEASED CRIME statistics before it was required by the Campus Crime Reporting and Awareness Act of 1990. President John C. Guyon said the University will continue to release statistics and records.

Awareness of campus crime is vital for members of the campus community in protecting themselves and perhaps in deterring future crimes.

Legislation to differentiate campus crime records from education records is needed because students should not be immune to having their crime records disclosed.

IF ANYONE SHOULD be protected, it is victims and other students who have a right to know with whom they go to school and what kind of crimes take place there.

A crime is a crime, and criminal records of students should be disclosed along with other public records.

Those who violate the law should not be protected just because they are students.

Spraying mace in student's eyes unjust, harmful

I AM WRITING my letter to the policeman who unjustly sprayed me with mace Wednesday night (Oct. 30) on the strip.

I was standing on the sidewalk in front of Six Bar and Billiards waiting for a friend, when I was suddenly shoved by a group of people onto Illinois Avenue.

Upon entering the street I saw a policeman pull some type of gun out and he started to shoot streams of mace at the crowd. I was initially hit in both eyes. My eyes started to burn and water, and I could not see for about an hour.

The following day my eyes were still swollen and extremely red.

IT WAS OBVIOUS that we were pushed onto the street; I think the policeman should have had a little more common sense to aim his mace at the back of the crowd.

I think the police officers have to be realistic though. Did 20 of them think they could actually stop 800 people from entering Illinois Avenue. I think the police force was making their job harder than it had to be that evening.

Please tell me how spraying that mace prevented the crowd from entering the street, if anything it invoked them.

THE FOLLOWING day on the radio I heard the reason the police officers had to result to mace was because of an uncontrollable and violent crowd.

If getting shoved and falling onto Illinois Avenue was a violent behavior which called for spraying mace at the crowd, I would hate to see how they react in an actual crisis situation. Why is it that the innocent bystanders are the ones who always get hurt?—Barbara Gibbs, senior in speech communication.

Apology owed to Africans

I am writing in response to an article published by the DE on Oct. 29, 1991 titled "Critic: African Religion, art depict spiritualism." I was flabbergasted and greatly perturbed to read the assertions of Mr. David Hecht, and even more perturbed to find out that the DE would publish such assertions without ascertaining their accuracy from African students on campus or from other reliable sources.

Mr. Hecht who calls himself an art critic from New York, claimed that Africans build houses that fall the next day, they buy machineries that has no spare parts, they defecate on their beaches, and that mothers of twin babies who lose one of the twins represent the dead twin with a doll, and feed and clothe the doll as they do the living twin.

These statements do not only depict the high level of Mr. Hecht's ignorance of African culture and religion, but are also tantamount to label and utter degradation of the culture of the entire continent. If Mr. Hecht is using isolated incidents of defecation on beaches, etc to characterize the whole continent of more than 500 million people from 52 countries with more than 2000 distinct cultures, then he is of all men most naive.

Mr. Hecht's unsavory statements are an outright insult to all Africans not only on this campus but elsewhere. It is only befitting that a public apology be issued by the DE and Mr. Hecht. The DE for exhibiting poor journalism by publishing erroneous materials. If someone claims that Mr. A is a murderer would the DE publish such claim without ascertaining its credibility? I think not. And Mr. Hecht for his uninformed, callous, and misleading statements. So much for the so-called art critic from New York.—Phil Alalibo, graduate student in public administration.

Pain of terminally ill outweighs effects of drugs not approved

The staff editorial included in the Oct. 15 edition of the DE is an example of over paternalism. The author of this article sets forth the premise that patients faced with terminal illness should not utilize drugs not approved by the FDA. This premise is grounded in the belief that federal regulations are instituted to protect the patient from undue harm.

The author asserts that patients should not forego established medical treatment for untested drugs of which serious or irreversible side effects are unknown.

Is the author suffering from a lapse of memory? The patients are terminally ill. In the end stages of the diseases mentioned, AIDS, certain cancers, and Alzheimer's, the patients are in great pain and death is most readily assured. In light of this fact, I ask the author to relate what is more serious than constant pain or more irreversible than death?

The author points to the possibility that experimental drugs may not be effective. I do not know of any existing therapies that do more than manage those diseases. Is the author making the absurd suggestion that patients should be denied a chance at life due to the ineffective management of a bureaucratic federal organization?

Lastly, the author asserts that no one can be held accountable for the imperilment of a patient's life if there are no rules. Has he or she forgotten that the poll cited in the beginning of the article suggested the use of experimental drugs in consultation with a doctor?

Today experimental therapies are utilized at the NIH but the experimental status of the treatment does not absolve the medical staff of responsibility for the welfare of the patient.

This article is an example of a noble intention resulting in a malignant outcome. The author is motivated by the protection of patients during vulnerable times, but this very motivation results in harm to the population that is to be protected. The author has failed to temper philosophical principles with the horrific reality of the terminally ill.—Derick DuVivier, student in medprep.

A taste for passion

Flair always in style at SIUC Ebony Fashion Fair

By Omonpee O. Whitfield
Special Assignment Writer

A member of a local African-American women's group said despite the amount of African-American models in the show, the Ebony Fashion Fair is not necessarily a minority-oriented event.

Anne Marie Shepherd, publicity chairwoman of the Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc.,

Gamma Kappa Omega Chapter, said although

Ebony Fashion Fair models are African Americans the annual event should not be thought of as specifically for African Americans.

In fact, the sorority has sponsored the Ebony Fashion

Fair for eight years, and in past years, 25 percent of the audiences has been white.

Shepherd said.

"It (Ebony Fashion Fair) just so happens to be something that is available, and is black-owned and operated," Shepherd said.

The group was established in 1958 by Robert Johnson, owner of Johnson Publishing Co. Johnson Publishing produces Jet and Ebony magazines, publications geared toward African-American women, and EM, a magazine geared to African-American men.

Johnson's wife Eunice serves as the commentator for Ebony Fashion Fair models, as they model across the county and in other parts of the world. Clothing by well-known designers such as Oscar De La Renta, Pierre Cardin, and Yves St. Laurent is exhibited in the shows.

In addition to being oriented to all races of people, Shepherd said, the 34th annual show, "Fashions With Passion," this year will feature fashions that, because of their simplicity, will appeal to the masses.

"A lot of the garments will be more conventional," Shepherd said. "They will be more along the lines of things we wear everyday than fashions modeled in past years."

Shepherd said AKA funds raised from the Ebony Fashion Fair are either awarded as scholarships or contributed to the Carbondale community. She said proceeds last year were awarded to scholarship recipient Tamara Gibbs, a student at University of Illinois.

Shepherd said the number of scholarships given and the amount of money awarded depends upon the amount of money the organization has in its treasury.

The program this year will be at 8 p.m. Dec. 5 in Shryock Auditorium. Tickets are $18 and include admission to the Fashion Fair, and a one-year subscription to either Ebony magazine or EM, a magazine geared to African American men, or a six-month subscription to Jet magazine.

Soul mates get together in workshop

Three participants in a pre-college program for low income high school students said in addition to teaching the three R's, Upward Bound workshops have taught them the one S—soul.

Cairo High School seniors John Lewis and Tiffany Burris and junior Tameka Artez said in addition to being educational, bi-weekly workshops offered through Upward Bound, an SIUC pre-college program, have given them a chance to come in contact with other African-American students.

They said the opportunity to interact with other African-American students was an education in itself.

"In the workshops and in Upward Bound in general, the majority of the students are black," Lewis said. "You get to meet a lot of other black students and establish friendships that could last through college."

"Also, seeing black instructors gives us something to strive for."

In addition to the social aspect, Burris said being able to meet other African-American students Antonio Washington, busy in May trying to coordinate a BAC-sponsored concert, said starting more minority activities is one of his main focuses.

Minority activities experience growth

Black Affairs Council Coordinator Antonio Washington said since he was first elected two years ago, one of his biggest priorities has been to solve what he calls the problem of too few African-American oriented programs on campus.

To counter act this, BAC has put an extra effort to sponsor more African-American activities.

BAC has implemented three new programs and re-instated one former program geared toward African-Americans in the past two years. In addition BAC began an annual Black Affairs Council Leadership conferences.

Washington said programs sponsored this semester were successful in attracting African-American students. He also said he is optimistic about the success of the conference this year.

"We already have 350 people pre-registered," Washington said. "We are just about to exceed last year's attendance record of nearly 400 people."

The conference, "Emerging Leaders, Cultivating the Seeds of Knowledge," began Thursday with registration and a welcome reception.

Other conference events include luncheons with keynote speakers poet Sonia Sanchez at 11:30 a.m. Friday in the Student Center Ballrooms C and D, and a Nation of Israel Youth Spokesman Conrad Muhammad at noon Saturday in the Student Center, Renaissance Room.

A dinner with "In Living Color" comedian T'Keyah Keymah will be at 6 p.m. Saturday in the Student Center Renaissance Room. The luncheons and the dinner are $15.

Washington said the success of both conferences will prompt University officials to notice the African-American student population and to be more sensitive to its needs.

Because the conference last year was attended by students across the country and was also so well received by African-American SIUC students, Washington is sure this conference will motivate the University to become more enthusiastic about African-American oriented events.

"I think that by this being the second annual conference, it is raising the University's level of consciousness about the need for African-American oriented programs," Washington said.

"It is showing them that we can take a program from scratch without undue assistance from the University and make it successful."

Washington said despite the attendance at the 1990 conference, he still does not feel the University has accepted the program. He said he feels this way because of the lack of services SIUC provided for

Campus club arranges food drive

By Teri Lynn Carlock
General Assignment Writer

Blacks Interested in Business, a student organization at SIUC, is coordinating the Egyptian Council Boy Scouts of America's canned food drive from Saturday to Nov. 16 on campus.

The Boy Scouts' food drive is taking place in nine counties throughout Illinois.

The group's goal is to gather a minimum of 10,000 cans of food by the end of the week, said BIB member Stephan Toussaint, but the organization hopes to surpass its goal.

EIB will provide bags to people who live in Brush Towers, University Park, Thompson Point and Lewis Park.

The organization also will have designated drop-off and pick-up points for the food.

Michael Haywood, faculty adviser for BIB, said there currently is a large need for a canned food drive.

"Because of the recession, there are more and more people in need right now," he said "It takes a lot of organizing and planning to do something like this, but the result will be helping a lot of people."

BIB will pick up canned food Nov. 15 on campus and local. Boy Scouts will pick up canned food Nov. 16 at other locations in Carbondale.

Men help shop for groceries; adults concerned for health

NEW YORK (UPI) — A survey of Americans' food buying and eating habits shows most men claim they push grocery carts and microwaves rule 91 percent of the kitchens, Parade magazine reported Thursday.

The survey of 2,106 adults between the ages of 18 and 65 conducted by Mark Clements Research, Inc. found that despite 76 percent of the men saying they participate in food buying, only 18 percent of them were principal food shoppers.

As for their eating habits, 95 percent said they were concerned about the nutritional value of their food, while 68 percent said they were making an effort to cut down on cholesterol and saturated fats.

However, 45 percent of the women and 27 percent of the men admitted they go on food binges.

SIUC party image target of events for COBA week

By Teri Lynn Carlock
General Assignment Writer

Blacks Interested in Business is sponsoring the College of Business and Administration's first annual Pride Week next week.

BIB developed the idea for Pride Week last spring. The members initially wanted to just have a one-day event, but the idea "snowballed" into a full week of activities.

Michael Haywood, BIB faculty adviser, said the purpose of COBA Pride Week is get students to take pride in SIUC and to give SIUC a better name.

"When a lot of students think of SIUC, they see it as a party school," he said "But we have quality, top-notch programs on campus, and we are a major research institution."

BIB wants to let students know about the positive aspects of SIUC and COBA, Haywood said.

"Hopefully we can use Pride Week as a recruiting tool for those students who are undecided about their major and their career," he said.

Haywood said all students have a hidden sense of pride for their school, but some do not express it as much as others. He hopes Pride Week will influence students to show the way they feel.

Stephan Toussaint, a BIB member, said because COBA Pride Week is new to SIUC, students will take interest.

Toussaint said BIB hopes the week of events will increase student awareness of the history and accomplishments of COBA and its alumni.

The week will be full of a variety of events. All SIUC students and faculty are welcome to attend.

A basketball tournament will be from 5 to 9 p.m. Sunday in the Recreation Center. The intent is to provide a network with a casual atmosphere for students.

A bowling tournament will be from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday at the Student Center.

A student professional development seminar titled "Image and Etiquette" will also highlight the week.

Pride Week will end with the COBA Pride Banquet from 6 to 9 p.m. Friday in the Cambria Room of the Student Center. Thomas Gutteridge, dean of the college, will speak at the banquet.

Brian Welch, a COBA alumni who now works for Hallmark Cards, Inc. in Kansas City, Missouri, will speak at 6 p.m. Thursday in Lawson 161.

Communication Building custodian.

The snow Wednesday caused new leaks in the hallways and offices on the north end of the building.

Allen Haake, the university architect, said the ceiling has no chance of falling in, but, he advised those who have water leaking in around electrical appliances to cut off the current to them.

Although there is no present danger of the entire roof falling in, the water has saturated some ceiling tiles, causing them to fall.

"I'm running cut of garbage cans to put under the leaks," Ray said.

Some areas have been sealed off because of falling ceiling tiles and leaking water in the hallways.

The College of Communications and Fine Arts has planned to fix the roof for years, said George Mavigliano, the associate dean of the college.

The actual plan began last year but funding for the project was held up because of budget setbacks in state government.

"The state was broke and funds were not identified for this project until last summer," Haake said. "Now they have been appropriated by the state legislature and been administered by the Capital Development Board. Since the mid '60s, it has been a law for money appropriated through legislation for capital improvements to go through the board.

The original cost of the project, $204,148, is the amount the university has been given by the state. But additional damage will raise the cost of the project.

"It will probably raise slightly, but we don't have those numbers yet," Haake said.

Mavigliano said CCFA has no special plans on the way it will assist the different departments in the Communications Building other than helping them do what they can.

"We've got to protect the equipment by making sure it is only water and not ceiling tiles or other structural material coming in," he said. "But, the human factor is far more important than the computer equipment."

Mavigliano said this is only the beginning.

"The problems are going to grow. Obviously, the problem is going to get worse before it gets better," he said.

The plastic roof was a new concept in 1977 and worked as a roof membrane, or a plastic shield that covered the roof and was held down by rocks.

The plastic, however, is not stretching and receding with the temperature changes; instead, it is becoming brittle.

"The roof didn't work out like we were told," Haake said.

The University has contracted with Vaughn Roofing of Marion through the Capital Development Board in Springfield to install a new roof made with rubber.

Because the contract is going through the Springfield board, it has taken some time to start the work. Vaughn Roofing recently has been insured and bonded and the company is waiting to sign the final papers.

Mia Jazo, a spokeswoman for the Capital Development Board, said the contractor was slow in returning its post-award requirement information to the board.

This information, including proof of bonding and insurance, may have been the cause of some of the delay in the process.

The first step in the construction process will consist of removing from the roof 150,000 to 200,000 pounds of rock, used to weight the plastic roof down.

This process has already begun. Haake said this may "very likely" have led to some of the damage that occurred Thursday.

"Eventually when we're walking on it and removing the rock we could be causing some damage," Haake said.

The second step will be to fill in low spots in the roof, now filling up with water, with insulation before installing the new roof.

The rubber roof, which eventually will be laid over the existing material, will be fastened down mechanically so the rock will not have to be replaced.

Vaughn Roofing will have 84 days to complete the project from the starting day. Haake said the work should be completed by late January.

Jerry Vaughn, owner of Vaughn Roofing, says the schedule of repair relies primarily on the weather, ice and snow can make a difference.

Vaughn's company will start the project when materials arrive. They are expected around Thanksgiving.

The new congressional map split the Southern Illinois counties east and west and combines them with adjacent districts to the north.

Poshard has said the metropolitan areas to the north of these districts moves the population bases and the political clout away from Southern Illinois.

Barbara Brown, political science lecturer at SIUC, said Poshard is probably keeping his options open until he has time to study the new map, but he probably will stay on the Democratic ticket.

His chance of success as an independent or Republican candidate is too unpredictable, she said.

If Poshard does decide to run again in Southern Illinois, he has some of his old territory in either of the new districts, Brown said.

Geographically, the district to the east is more difficult for him to campaign and travel in during the winter because it stretches so far north, she said. Carterville and White County, where Poshard is from, are in the eastern district.

The district to the west is more compact geographically but would require Poshard to learn about a new set of concerns because of the metropolitan areas there, she said.

Two congressional seats were lost in Illinois because of stagnant population growth in the state. A third district also had to be eliminated to make room for a Hispanic district in Chicago.

Redrawing the districts was left to a panel of three federal judges because the Illinois General Assembly was unable to compromise on the map.

Both parties submitted new map proposals, but the panel chose to accept the Republican proposal Wednesday with very few changes.

strategy. Key to the session was the later adoption of a new strategy for NATO in the wake of the Cold War.

Bush's move was meant to publicly blunt budding efforts on the part of France, joined by Germany, to forge an independent defense force. The move raised concerns in the administration that it could weaken NATO and lead to its eventual fragmentation.

A senior administration official, speaking on condition he not be named, said Bush spoke out because enough questions had been raised about how, for example, a proposed joint Franco-German army could be under NATO auspices when France is not a military member, and how the expansion of various European Community organizations of which the United States is not a member could be controlled.

"For those reasons the president felt it was necessary," the official said. "He (Bush) wanted a clear statement and definition in this communicate."

Chicken compost removes big stink from waste query

CASSVILLE, Mo. — Ron Wright knows about the thousands of dead chickens and turkeys in his county.

He knows about the stench, disease and pollution problems, and the high cost of safely disposing of the unavoidable mortalities that occur in the poultry business.

And he knows about composting, "a sweet way to solve a costly problem."

Wright is University Extension farm management specialist for southwest Missouri. Under a $96,500 grant funded in part by the Environmental Protection Agency, Wright and University of Missouri-Columbia agricultural specialists have worked with five area poultry processing plants to compost poultry mortalities and turn them into valuable fertilizer.

Each company has consulted with MU and Soil Conservation Service agricultural engineers and others to build a compost bin. Each design is different. Each one works.

"But we're studying them all to see which works best," Wright said.

Processors participating in the project include four broiler plants: George's, Inc.; Tyson; Simmon's Industries; and ConAgra. Also participating is Hudson Farms, a turkey processing plant.

"Their compost bins work just like the one you use to compost leaves, except we use a cement floor and a roof over the bin," Wright said. "They use layers of litter, straw and poultry mortalities."

The organic layers stay in a primary bin 15 days. Then the whole contents of the bin are turned over and put into a secondary bin for another 15 days. Inside the pile, bacteria work on the organic matter, heating the piles to 130 to 160 degrees.

"That's enough to kill harmful bacteria and minimize any chance for disease," Wright said. "Besides, it converts the nitrogen into a more stable form that makes better fertilizer, because it doesn't decompose and get lost in the air."

"The bins work fine — no runoff, no seepage, no exposure to the environment," Wright said.

Without the bins, processors had buried dead birds in pits or burned them. There was always a chance that those methods of disposal could pollute the air or underground water supplies.

"That's something you really have to think about around here where poultry production is so concentrated," Wright said.

Aggressive local act plans for CD

By Jefferson Robbins
Entertainment Editor

Carbondale heavy metal band Dissident Aggressor hopes to rock hard in digital sometime in 1992.

The band plans to record a compact disc at Solid Sound in Chicago during the SIUC Thanksgiving break with a release date sometime in February.

The CD, titled "The Storm" after one of DA's more popular songs, will be a follow-up to the band's 1991 cassette, "The Harm Before the Storm," said guitarist Gregg Goodhart.

"When we recorded that tape, we went into the studio with $200 in our hands from a Sunday gig at Gatsby's," Goodhart said. "We always intended to make a really good release down the line and put a lot of money into it."

Goodhart said the band would like to have the CD out either Feb. 2 or Feb. 7, the anniversaries of Aggressor's first basement party gig and first club date respectively. The CD will feature reworked versions of songs from the "Harm" cassette, such as "The Meaning of Life" and "Bill-O-Rama," along with several new tracks.

Goodhart said the idea for a CD rather than a second tape came to him when he was in New York City having "Harm" duplicated by a production company there.

"Getting the duplication done, I noticed the company also did CDs, and they weren't as expensive as I thought they would be," he said.

DA bassist Brian Gordon said recording to CD gives the band a chance to improve on the quality of the cassette.

"It's got to be mint," Gordon said. "We've all got to be happy with it, otherwise it won't fly."

"I just wanted to put it on CD because then the quality never diminishes," Goodhart said. "We wanted to do it right in a really good studio—not to impress any record labels or anything, but because we want our music down really well."

Goodhart, Gordon and drummer Ryan Smith have big plans for the album's packaging as well.

Goodhart hopes to commission cover art from Guy Aitchison, a former schoolmate and artist who has done covers for metal guitarists Vinnie Moore and Tony MacAlpine.

Aggressor's plans to record come at a difficult time for the band, which currently is seeking a new vocalist. Former singer Eric Bratcher probably will do vocals for the CD, even though he left the band before fall semester.

Goodhart said he has high hopes for sales on the CD, which probably will be priced at about $10. "The Harm Before the Storm" sold 125 of 200 copies when it was released, and Bratcher said DA's fan base is large enough to support the project.

"We have the most dedicated, loyal, just all-around high-quality people that I've ever met as fans," Bratcher said. "They stick with us and they appreciate our musical integrity."

Dissident Aggressor will be playing at Gatsby's Friday and Saturday nights with Venero opening the show.

SIUC official to return to faculty duties in '92

By Christiann Baxter
Administration Writer

Mary Lou Higginson, associate vice president for academic affairs and research, will leave her position Jan. 1 to return as a faculty member in the SIUC speech communication department.

HIGGINSON, 43, said she decided to leave her position to have more time for consulting work and research.

"That schedule will afford me more opportunity to accept consulting jobs that are being offered to me by the American Council on Education," she said. "There's no way to do those jobs and this."

Higginson has been associate vice president for academic affairs and research since 1987.

Ben Shepherd, vice president for academic affairs and research, said a temporary replacement will be chosen within the next few weeks.

THE DUTIES involved in the position are coordinating department program review, approving catalog changes, handling student matters and coordinating the university assessment initiative, which is Illinois Board of Higher Education mandate for assessing student learning progress.

Higginson said that while she has enjoyed working with faculty and academic deans, she is hoping to make a national impact in her work with the American Council on Education through various consulting projects.

Higginson

Higginson has had variety of positions at SIUC.

SHE CAME to the University as an instructor in speech communication in 1973.

She was an associate dean in the College of Communications and Fine Arts from 1980 to 1987.

She also was acting chairwoman of the theater department from 1982 to 1983.

HIGGINSON EARNED a bachelor's degree from Clarion University in Pennsylvania.

She also received a master's degree from Central Michigan State University and a doctoral degree in organizational communication from the University of Kansas.

She worked as an intern in the president and chancellor's offices as an American Council on Education fellow from 1986 to 1987.

Scholar of philosophy of creativity, adjunct professor, dies at age 90

By Teri Lynn Carlock
General Assignment Writer

Obituary

William S. Minor, a retired adjunct professor of speech communication at SIUC who founded an organization to study the philosophy of creativity, has died.

Minor died Sunday at Memorial Hospital in Carbondale. He was 90.

A specialist in the philosophy of creativity and creative communication, Minor set up an organization to study creativity in 1952. His Society for Philosophy of Creativity, supported by an associated foundation created in 1957, has divisions in the United States and abroad.

Minor directed both organizations for a number of years. In 1980, the society named him a distinguished service life member, an honor that has been conferred only four other times.

A native of Pennsylvania, Minor earned an undergraduate degree from Washington and Jefferson College in Washington, Pennsylvania, in 1924.

In 1931 he earned a divinity degree from the University of Chicago, completing a doctorate in philosophy and religion there 40 years later.

During the course of his career, he taught at the University of Missouri School of Religion, Earlham College in Indiana and West Virginia University.

Minor moved to Carbondale after retiring from West Virginia University. He began an academic association with SIUC and became an adjunct faculty member of the speech communication department in 1983.

Marvin Kleniau, former dean of the speech communications department, knew Minor for eight years. He said Minor was responsible for the support of creative communication studies in the department.

"He was of untiring determination," he said "He tried to create a lasting program not only in the classroom but for research purposes also."

Kleniau said Minor wanted to change the attitude and approach of the way people communicate.

"So the result would be positive instead of negative," he said "People would be able to engage in communication without conflict."

In 1987 Minor joined the SIUC President's Council, a group whose individual members have given at least $10,000 to the University.

Minor was born Dec. 4, 1900, in Greene County, Pennsylvania, to William and Anna Minor. He never married. Survivors include sisters Galia M. Minor and Faye M. Magill, both of Carbondale.

Fewer Americans smoking, decline continues—center

ATLANTA (UPI) — The percentage of adult Americans who smoke cigarettes has declined to 28.1 percent, a statistic that means another 1.3 million people have kicked the habit, the federal Centers for Disease Control said Thursday.

The CDC said 49 million adults and 2.3 million teenagers continue to smoke but that 42 million who are alive now have quit since the first surgeon general's report in 1964 linked smoking with health risks.

Gary A. Giovino, chief of the epidemiology branch of the CDC's Office of Smoking and Health, said the overall prevalence of smoking among those over 18 declined from 28.8 percent in 1987 to 28.1 percent in 1988. The 0.7 percent decline, he said, means that on average 1.3 million adults stopped smoking. Smoking prevalence was further reduced by an unknown number of others who are not taking up the habit, he said.

The CDC said smokers in the U.S. are starting to smoke regularly at a younger age, initiating the habit on average at age 17.4 compared to 19.7 years in the past. Both black and white women also are starting to smoke at an earlier age, it reported.

The estimate of smoking prevalence was based on the CDC's national health interview survey conducted in 1988, the latest year for which statistics have been collected and interpreted, Giovino said.

gives the students the opportunity to teach and be taught.

"By being minority students, we don't get the type of help we need from some of our teachers," Burris said. "In the workshops, we can help each other."

Artez said while the educational aspects are important, she sees an even greater advantage to the workshops. By serving as a means for African-American students to congregate, the workshops may help African-American students to stop fighting each other.

"When we meet, it's like we're one big, happy family," Artez said. "Programs like Upward Bound start you off early teaching African Americans to be kind to one another.

"Maybe if there were more programs like these, there would be less black-on-black crime."

Upward Bound Coordinator Donnell Wilson said at least 15 workshops are offered throughout the year and a summer session is offered. This summer 65 students participated in the program.

the conference.

"If the conference were completely accepted by the University, first of all there would be more financial support for it on all levels," Washington said.

"Also, Campus Services would allow us to use various supplies needed for the conference, such as walkie talkies and microphones, at a very reduced rate.

"The University is allowing us the opportunity to sponsor the conference, but not giving us the encouragement we need."

The key phrase for conference members to remember is "telephone numbers," Washington said.

"The purpose of this conference is networking," Washington said.

"We want each person who attends to leave with at least one telephone number of another participant. Networking is important."

Washington said BAC programs are designed to be of academic and cultural interest to African-American SIUC students.

"BAC programs are geared toward educating Brothers and Sisters," Washington said, "not only academically, but educationally as well.

"These programs are important in order for us to make a difference in our communities when we graduate from college."

Spring Semester 1992 BAC programs include:

- Red, Black and Green Ball, Feb. 1,
- Keynote Speaker, Feb. 6,
- Black Culture Quiz, Feb. 8,
- Guest Speaker, Feb. 12,
- Black Expo, Feb. 22,

lobbying effort by pro-abortion groups to have Congress enact a law overturning the policy.

They argued that the policy interferes with the doctor-patient relationship, violates free speech guarantees and endangers poor women's health by denying them information on all available medical options.

Harkin said, "We must untie the gag rule and restore to women the right to get information they need to make a decision," and Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., denies doctors and patients a "fundamental right — the freedom of speech."

Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., said it is an argument about "whether a poor woman is entitled to basic information" and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., called it a "grave injustice."

Supporters of the policy charged that many family planning clinics routinely recommend abortion for the women who come to them.

The original purpose of the clinics is to provide preventive family planning services, and abortion is not consistent with that purpose, they said.

Faced with growing opposition to the policy, even among Republicans, the president sought to allay fears about the effect of the regulations.

Ceremony honoring war veterans to include candlelight vigil, fly-by

By Todd Welvaert
General Assignment Writer

SIUC will join the nation in honoring all the veterans who served in the armed forces with a ceremony Monday at the Old Main flag pole.

The ceremony will conclude with a 24-hour nationwide candlelight vigil for those listed as POWs and MIAs.

The vigil will begin 4 p.m. Sunday and continue to 4 p.m. Monday. The vigil is sponsored by the Arnold Air Society, a service organization within the Air Force ROTC.

The Veterans Day ceremony will include a fly-by of two T-37 jet trainers from Columbus Air Force Base in Mississippi, a cannonade by Army ROTC cadets and a presidential review of the troops by Harvey Welch, vice president of Student Affairs.

"Some have given the ultimate

"Some have given the ultimate sacrifice for our way of life. This is a good way of showing our thanks."

—Cpt. Kenneth King

sacrifice for our way of life," Cpt. Kenneth King said. "This is a good way of showing our thanks."

SIUC has more than 1,500 student veterans and 835 faculty and staff veterans.

"It serves as recognition and our commitment to the American values, freedom and peace," said King, an assistant professor in military science. "With all its flaws it's still a pretty good system."

The ceremony will end with a version of the national anthem sung by Elizabeth Vanhala. The Army ROTC cadets will fire a three round volley to signify honor, duty and country.

Veterans Day dates back to 1919 when President Woodrow Wilson designated Nov. 11, as Armistice Day for those who fought and died in World War I.

Armistice Day was changed to Veterans Day in 1954 to honor veterans of all wars.

"My father was in World War I and died as the result of injuries he received in the war," said retired SIUC professor William O'Brien.

"I was in World War II and was called back for the Korean War and my cousin was killed in the Vietnam War," said O'Brien, a retired Marine Corps colonel.

"These days are very meaningful. I wish we would never have to fight in another war, but sometimes it seems like we can't help it," O'Brien said.

Investigators study fires in Florida

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (UPI) — Federal investigators were trying to determine Wednesday whether two suspicious church fires were connected with nearly three dozen other arson cases in north and central Florida.

The blazes that occurred early Wednesday morning caused minor damage to the First Church of Christ Scientist and the McDowell Baptist Church, said St. Augustine Fire Marshal John Rayno. But both appeared to be intentionally set.

"There was limited damage on both," Rayno said. "But we think they were both arson. That's what we're investigating right now. There wasn't any other obvious reason for the fires."

Investigators from the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and the state fire marshal's office were reviewing the blazes to see if they were linked with 34 suspected arson fires at churches in north and central Florida since April 1990.

"They are going to be checking every fire that's in a church in Florida that's suspicious," Rayno said.

Fires have damaged churches in Gainesville, Winter Haven, Lake City and Ocala. A total of $46,000 is being offered by federal officials and local groups for information that could lead to an arrest.

Investigators huddled in Ocala Wednesday to compare evidence in the cases and look for clues to lead them to a suspect.

Meanwhile, officials were warning church leaders to secure their buildings.

"We want them to take a little extra precaution with lighting, to check doors to make sure they are locked and just take extra security precautions," Rayno said.

In all, there have been 47 church fires in Florida since April 1990, and 36 have been identified as arson fires, said Sheila Hayes, a spokeswoman for the Gainesville Fire Department.

Authorities search details of kidnapped family case

BARRINGTON, R.I. (UPI) — Police began digging up a "gravesite" discovered Thursday in a wooded area not far from the home of a couple and their young daughter who disappeared seven weeks ago, authorities said.

Rhode Island Attorney General James O'Neil, however, refused to say whether any bodies were found or disclose any other information. Police cordoned off the area while the digging continued.

"We discovered a gravesite at this location. That's all we have to advise at this time," said O'Neil.

Authorities have been conducting a massive search for attorney Ernest Brendel, 53, his wife, Alice, 46, a Brown University librarian, and their daughter Emily, 8, who disappeared on Sept. 20.

Police said they suspect the family was abducted by Christopher Hightower, 42, a commodities broker who apparently held a grudge against Ernest Brendel.

The gravesite was located in a wooded area off 79 Middle Highway, about a quarter of a mile from the Brendels' home and the school Emily attended.

Lee Baker, a spokeswoman for O'Neil, confirmed that authorities believed the remains of the Brendels could be buried there.

Police reportedly were acting on a tip, but Baker declined to say why authorities targeted that area.

Hightower, the sole suspect in the disappearance, was arrested Sept. 23 after he was found driving the family's bloodstained car.

Ernest Brendel had filed a complaint charging Hightower, a commodities broker, had given him false information which cost him a $12,000 investment, authorities said.

Hightower, who was well known in Barrington for his work as a Sunday school teacher and a youth soccer coach, had driven the car to the home of Ernest Brendel's sister in Guilford, Conn., police said.

The sister, Christine Scribaine, said Hightower told her the Brendels had been kidnapped and asked for $75,000 to pay a ransom.

Scribaine became suspicious of Hightower's story and called the FBI, officials said.

Police said they found Hightower driving the Brendel car, which contained blood stains and teeth later determined to be that of Ernest Brendel.

Authorities also said they found a crossbow and an empty bag of lime in the car. Lime can be used to mask odors and to accelerate decomposition of bodies.

Hightower has been held since his arrest on extortion charges.

He has refused to cooperate with investigators.

SIUC sophomore dies in car crash

John F. Girard, a 20-year-old sophomore in consumer economics and family management from Belleville, was killed Sunday in a car accident in Mississippi.

Girard was traveling north on Interstate 55, a quarter-of-a-mile north of U.S. Highway 82, when it slid off the left side of the highway, overturned on the shoulder, hit a tree and landed in a drainage ditch.

Mississippi Highway Patrol has not yet determined the cause of the accident.

Girard was pronounced dead at the scene and his passenger, Shiela Toring was taken to Tyler Homes Memorial Hospital and released the next day in satisfactory condition.

Leyland vetoes contract extension

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Jim Leyland of the Pittsburgh Pirates turned down an anticipated contract extension that would have made him one of baseball's highest paid managers, the Pittsburgh Press reported Thursday.

The Press, citing sources close to the team, said Leyland told Pirates board chairman Doug Danforth on Oct. 24 that he was not interested in an extension or a renegotiation, even before Danforth could offer one.

Leyland, whose team won the National League East, cited the instability of small-market franchises as a reason.

"By everybody's admission, there's a lot of concern about the future of baseball in a lot of small-market areas," Leyland told the Press. "I would not have accepted an extension if it had been offered, but I want to make it clear that I'm totally happy in Pittsburgh, and that I want to remain in Pittsburgh."

Danforth said through a team spokesman that Leyland is signed through 1993 and no other team may talk with him until that time. Danforth likened Leyland to the Dodgers' Tom Lasorda, a manager who has spent his entire career with one club.

But Leyland's future with the Pirates may hinge on the signing of free agents Bobby Bonilla and Mike LaValliere, and potential free agents Barry Bonds, Doug Drabek and John Smiley, who will be eligible after next season.

The Chicago White Sox, who have a managerial vacancy, made it known during the World Series they planned to ask permission to talk with Leyland. Pirates General Manager Larry Doughty said permission would be granted. But Danforth flew back from Florida to meet with Leyland and state that his manager would not be available, now or in the immediate future.

Hawkeyes, Hoosiers aim for Holiday Bowl

IOWA CITY, (UPI) — The Holiday Bowl beckons to the winner of Saturday's game between Indiana and Iowa. The loser most likely will spend the holidays at home.

With Michigan having virtually locked up first place in the Big Ten Conference, the battle is being waged for second between Indiana and Iowa. That doesn't sound like much, but when you consider that the second-place finisher in the conference earns a trip to the Holiday Bowl, Saturday's game takes on added significance.

"A victory would be a great plus and a boost to our program," said Indiana Coach Bill Mallory, whose team is coming off a 34-8 triumph over Minnesota. "As far as the teams we have faced, Iowa is right in there with Notre Dame and Michigan."

The Hawkeyes and Hoosiers are both 4-1 in the conference. Each lost to Michigan.

Iowa is 7-1 overall and 1 ranked No. 10 in the country while Indiana is a victory away from cracking the top 25.

"We like the exposure that we have been getting and it's good to know that people have respect for you," said Mallory. "I just know we have to make improvements against Iowa in order to win."

The Hoosiers — a surprise to most people at 7-1 — had an early supporter in Iowa Coach Hayden Fry.

"Indiana was the team I picked at the beginning of the year as the sleeper in the conference," said

Fry. "To have 17 or 18 starters back (from a team that went 6-5-1 in 1990) tells you that they will be solid. They were a darkhorse coming into the year and had been playing very sound on both sides of the ball."

The key to the Hoosiers is senior running back Vaughn Dunbar.

Dunbar, who is second to Michigan's Desmond Howard in touchdowns with nine (Howard has 17), easily leads the conference in rushing. Dunbar is averaging 5.1 yards a carry and 160.5 yards per game.

"Dunbar is without question one of the top three or four backs in the nation," said Fry. "He has the ability to run over and around you and if he gets in the open field he can run right past you."

De Klerk attacks politics of South Africa's Olympic flag

PRETORIA, South Africa (UPI) — South African President F.W. de Klerk Thursday called it "unacceptable" for his country's Olympic body to disassociate itself from the South African flag and national anthem at the 1992 Barcelona Games.

Addressing the opening of his National Party's Transvaal regional congress, de Klerk said Wednesday's decision to take South African athletes to the 1992 Olympics under a newly designed interim flag was a political act sponsored by the anti-apartheid African National Congress.

"It is not only a shame that this has happened, it is also unacceptable," de Klerk said, speaking in Afrikaans.

National Olympic Committee of South Africa chairman Sam Ramsamy, announcing South Africa's acceptance of an invitation to the Olympics Wednesday, unveiled a new flag for the team and said he had asked the International Olympic Committee's permission to use the Olympica Anthem, Beethoven's "Ode to Joy," at the Games.

Ramsamy said the new emblems and anthem were necessary because the current symbols still smacked of apartheid.

"It is not for NOCSA or Mr Ramsamy to take decisions over national symbols such as the flag or the anthem," de Klerk said. "Sports must be a unifying factor in the process of nation-building. Politicians must keep their hands off and only give a supporting role."

"We welcome our land's return to international competition and have appreciation for everybody, even the ANC in as far as they positively helped to make this possible."

"Green and gold with the Springbok (South Africa's sports symbol until now) has a proud history."

It has been worn with pride by every South African regardless of race or color and has nothing to do with apartheid," he said.

Swimmers, divers join forces to battle in first home meet

By Norma Wille
Sports Writer

The SIUC men's and women's divers spring into action Saturday for the first time this season.

The swim teams hope to smooth out their performance in their season home opener after a disappointing performance in the Big 10 Relays last weekend.

Swimming coach Doug Ingram said the swimmers have started to counteract the negative effects of last weekend's meet in practice.

"As a team we did not live up to our expectations last weekend," he said. "Hopefully we'll be more ready again against the University of Missouri."

said. "But I think there was a lot of nervous energy spent before the race."

DeNoon said junior Leeann Conway, a prospective meet favorite, was unable to get on track during the 5,000-meter race.

"Leeann just never seemed to get going," he said. "She was as far back as thirtieth in the early part of the race and she was never able to catch up."

"Individually she probably could have done a little bit better, but I don't know how much difference one person could really make (in the overall standings)."

Western Illinois senior Kathy Campbell took individual honors, finishing in 17:47.

Indiana State freshman Amy Cohee was second, and SMSU sophomore Eva Gerhardt was third in the 64-runner field.

Junior Dawn Barefoot was the top Saluki finisher, placing 10th in 18:22.

Senior Amie Padgett finished 12th in 18:33, and junior Leeann

Senior Greg Testa and sophomore Rob Siracusanu will return to dive for the men's team.

Testa was a zone qualifier the past two seasons, and Siracusanu was an NCAA qualifier on the three-meter bears last season.

Senior Michelle Albrecht, who was named all-conference last season, and sophomore Donnelle DuBois, who qualified on the one-meter boards in NCAA zone competition last season, will return to dive for the women's team.

Freshmen Travis Niemeyer and Amy Gende are new divers for the Salukis.

The teams will compete at 2 p.m. in the Recreation Center pool.

Conway was 16th in 18:36.

DeNoon said although the Salukis are disappointed in the conference loss they have a lot to be proud of.

"We still know we're a good team. It wasn't one of our better days but that doesn't erase all the other things we've accomplished this season."

"We've got a strong group of returning athletes," he said. "If we can continue to recruit high quality athletes we should be even tougher in the future."

The SIUC women's last scheduled meet of the 1991 season is the Fifth District meet in Nov. 16th in Wichita, Kan.

DeNoon said, however, that he is unsure if his team will compete in the meet.

"We're going to take some time to rebound from the conference meet before I decide what to do," he said. "In the mean time we'll continue to work out and we'll make a decision sometime in the next week."

two of which will be battled at home.

SIUC's most recent victims are Bradley and Western Illinois. The Salukis won both matches in straight sets, taking Bradley 15-6, 15-6 and 15-10 and WIU 15-11, 15-10 and 15-10.

Senior outside hitter Lori Simpson and junior middle blocker Dana Olden were again the driving force behind the Saluki's victory.

Simpson's two-match totals were 33 kills, a .492 hitting percentage and 38 digs. Olden posted 47 kills, a .368 hitting percentage, 20 digs and nine blocks.

Two of the team's younger players also made their presence felt on the court.

Freshman Deborah Heyne contributed for 10 kills and freshman Kim Cassidy tallied 13 digs.

"We cannot ask any more of Lori and Dana, but I have been pleased with the play off the bench," Locke said. "We have a number of individuals fill in and play well for our starters. As a group we have stuck together. We've worked our way through some injuries and have gotten tougher."

WHILE SIUC is one of four teams hovering at the top of the Gateway totem pole, individually its players have tipped the scales in their favor.

As a team, the Salukis lead the conference in kills-per-game average with 14.47.

Simpson sits atop the rankings and leads the Gateway in digs with a 4.00 percentage, is No. 2 in hitting with a .275 percentage and is No. 3 in kill average with 3.88.

Olden leads the league in hitting with .291, ranks fourth in kills and fifth in blocks.

Senior setter Martha Firmhaber is the Saluki's third stalwart player who leads the conference in assists with 12.01 a game. She also is only 41 assists away from setting a new SIUC record of assists in a single season.

"Martha knows her role of quarterback and fills it well," Locke said. "When the going gets tough, it is her that makes the difference for the team. I don't think there is a stronger setter in the Gateway this season."

pressure on us."

The Salukis will have their hands full stopping Louisiana Tech. The Bulldogs expect to earn a berth in a post season bowl game.

"They have good skilled people and they have chosen to run the ball more," Smith said. "There is no way anybody is going to really knock them off the ball. They just can run, run, run."

"If our kids are going to play tough football, we'll probably have to go back to that aerial circus type attack for this game—trap, draw, screen, keep their hard charges off balance."

Another thing Smith says relieves the pressure is the Salukis have fulfilled most of their preseason goals.

"We have met some very important goals prior to the end of the season," he said.
